

TREATMENT AND CONTROL DEVICE

Abstract

A treatment or controlling device capable of insertion into a teat orifice, the device also capable of being held in position in the teat streak canal once inserted therein characterised in that the device is configured to act as a substrate for natural keratin deposition.